Throw the First Pitch at a Red Sox Game, Thanks to Boston's Hotel Commonwealth

by Jordi Lippe-McGraw

The ultimate experience for any baseball fan.

Throwing the first pitch at a professional baseball game is a tradition typically reserved for celebrities, VIPs, and local heroes. Or, you could just be a guest at Hotel Commonwealth. The luxury Boston hotel just announced their new over-the-top packages for the 2017 baseball season, and one allows you to throw the first pitch at a Red Sox game.

One lucky guest who books the “25 Grand Slam” package will not only get a two-night stay in the themed one bedroom Fenway Park Suite with views of Fenway Park, but also the connecting room, so six people can take part in the package. The group will also get an on-the-field view of batting practice, a personalized message on the scoreboard during the game, six game tickets behind home plate, and the rare opportunity to watch an inning from inside the Green Monster—aka the green, 37-foot, left-field wall. Of course, the highlight is getting the chance to throwing out the ceremonial first pitch in front of 35,000 roaring fans at historic Fenway Park.

“Throwing out the first pitch is the only true way for a fan to actually be part of a Major League Baseball game and something most people would consider unattainable,” General Manager at Hotel Commonwealth, Adam Sperling, tells Condé Nast Traveler. “The thought of throwing out the first pitch is amazing enough, but when you consider that you will be doing it at historic Fenway Park at a Red Sox game, that puts it into true bucket-list status.” A bucket list item for a baseball fan, sure—but that fan needs to have $25,000 to spend.

If that’s a swing and a miss in terms of your budget, worry not: The hotel is offering another package that costs less, but is almost as awesome. The “Reverse Your Curse” Experience includes VIP transportation to the hotel—complete with Red Sox anthem “Sweet Caroline” playing the entire way—an overnight in the Fenway Park Suite, two tickets to a game, on-the-field viewing of batting practice, a VIP tour of the park with a former Red Sox player (whom you get varies), a welcome message on the scoreboard, personalized Red Sox jerseys, and an array of ballpark snacks including the classic Fenway Frank.

In addition, Red Sox fans will love that purchasers also get an official game ball, a bag of Fenway dirt on the pillow at turndown, year-long membership to the Red Sox Nation Fan Club, a personal phone call from legendary radio announcer Joe Castiglione, a delivery of the World Series trophy to your room (for selfies, of course), and a visit from beloved mascot Wally the Green Monster. Luckily, rates for this only start at $3,995.

Now that’s a home-run vacation.
